March 2016

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Hello!

With your current board approaching the end of its term in June 2016, it's time for all board members to buckle up and end their tenure on the board on a high note.

With Navroz approaching soon I look forward to seeing all our members at the Navroz Jashan at OZCF on March 21 and the grand joint ZSO-OZCF Navroz celebration on March 25 at Apollo Convention Center.

For members who have yet not paid their membership renewal dues, I request you to kindly do it soon. We have incentives for renewals done online via PayPal or the Electronic Fund Transfer option that takes away the worry of renewals every year.

Our Gala 2016 committee is working very hard on the mega fundraising event for the Place of Worship and I would greatly appreciate if you could help us with identifying potential donors, sponsors and volunteers.

Stay blessed.

Percy Agreras Dastur
President, OZCF

TANYA BHARDA—A ZOROASTRIAN AMBASSADOR IN CANADA

Whether she's leading a scout group, addressing a panel at the U.N. headquarters or working with underprivileged children in India, Tanya Bharda has always lived by the Zoroastrian doctrine of Good Thoughts, Good Words, Good Deeds.

As she prepares to pursue a Master's Degree in International Development Studies, Bharda hopes to continue being a true brand ambassador for Zoroastrians in Canada. Bharda immigrated to Canada with her parents and brother at the age of five. Known as "Jolly" because of the big smile always on her face, Bharda was well-known at the Zoroastrian Society of Ontario where she graduated from religion classes and the 100 Zoroastrian Scout Group. She went on to become a Beaver Leader at the Oakville scout group at the OZCF and is always a helping hand at community events.

Bharda graduated from the University of Toronto with an undergraduate degree in Women and Gender Studies and Italian, and a minor in Political Science. She frequently visited India in the summers, working with various non-government organizations to help underprivileged women and children – experiences that stood in stark contrast with her rather privileged upbringing in Canada.

The spirit of service and engagement with the poor, however, was not new to her. The values of selflessness and collective action had been central to her upbringing, with her family highlighting the idea of service at large. This translated into discipline and structured work in the area of social development as she grew older. Bharda hit a significant milestone when she was invited to participate on a panel at the United Nations Women's conference in New York, where spoke of her experiences in India. It was at that time that she decided to return to India on a one year sabbatical from academics to work with an NGO called the Sujaya Foundation to help underprivileged children in government schools.

Now, as she readies for her Masters, Bharda hopes to use academic knowledge to help women and children in the future while keeping in touch with her Indian roots and living up to her Zoroastrian values.

APPEAL FOR BABY ARYANA

This is an appeal for donations urgently required towards medical expenses for a very critical stem cell transplant for 4-year old Aryana, daughter of Kaeyan and Mitra Quettawala of Karachi, to be performed very soon in a hospital in Singapore. The Quettawalas are Zoroastrians, and the family and baby Aryana's critical condition are well known to many of our friends originally from Pakistan and now residing in the GTA.

In January 2015, baby Aryana was diagnosed with severe A-Plastic Anemia at the Aga Khan Hospital in Karachi. After attempts to treat the condition in Pakistan and Iran, medical experts have decided that the best option would be to go for a Haploidentical stem cell transplant from one of the parents, to be performed at a hospital in Singapore which is of the very few hospitals in the world that is suitably equipped to undertake such a critical procedure. There is an astronomical cost for this stem cell transplant, and we have a copy of a letter from the KK Women's and Children's Hospital in Singapore stating that the cost could be in the range of C$250,000 or even higher.

As a registered charity, ZSO is in a position to collect donations towards Aryana's treatment, and remit the entire amount so collected to Parsi Lodge Charity Trust Singapore, which is a registered charity in the country where the stem cell transplant is to be performed. ZSO will issue donation tax receipts for donations by cheque of minimum $20.00. When sending your donation cheques made payable to "ZSO", please mention in the memo portion or in a cover letter "for Aryana Quettawala's medical treatment", and mail your cheques to The Treasurer, Zoroastrian Society of Ontario, Meheraban Guiv Darbe Mehr, Zoroastrian Temple, 3590 Bayview Avenue, Toronto, Ontario M2M 3S6

Similar appeals have gone out to several Zoroastrian associations in North America. The Quettawala family will greatly appreciate your generosity, and we would request you to kindly give this matter your most urgent attention.

The University of Toronto has agreed to guide us to accomplish our goal and archive our project. We will also keep these recorded histories in our offices next to our place of worship. What a wonderful gift from us to posterity - our own place of worship together with our histories kept for our future generations. CONTACT Minnie Mirza 905-825-8188 CONTACT Minnie Mirza 905-825-8188, minnie.mirza@gmail.com

DOLLY DASTOOR—TRAILBLAZER IN DEMENTIA CARE

From Mumbai to Montreal, Dr. Dolly P. Dastoor has blazed a trail of leadership, achievement and compassion over several decades. Her life is guided by helping people cope with emotional suffering, supporting the empowerment of women, and making the Zoroastrian faith relevant to the community's youth in North America.

Dastoor is well known in the psychiatric community for her prominent work in Dementia and Alzheimer's disease. At a 2014 lecture on "Secrets of Successful Aging," Dastoor said "there are no secrets to aging gracefully. Just as being successful at anything, you have to really work at the things that will help you age well ... Active people are generally the happiest ones. In this way maintaining and cultivating a person's social network is also essential in aging gracefully."

After obtaining a Master's degree in Psychology from the University of Bombay, Dastoor moved with her husband to Nigeria where she worked for the World Health Organization as a Senior Research Fellow at the University of Ibadan. Dastoor then immigrated to Canada in 1973 to work as a Clinical Psychologist in Montreal's Douglas Hospital, specializing in the assessment of dementia, especially Alzheimer's disease. Notably, while working full-time, Dastoor completed a PhD in Clinical Psychology at Concordia University in 1998, the same year two of her children graduated with doctorates.

Together with Dr. Marin G. Cole, Dastoor developed an important and current assessment tool, the Hierarchic Dementia Scale, by studying models of cognitive decline with geriatric patients to obtain a prognostic and functional picture of the dementia patient. In 2001, she set up a program in Dementia with Psychiatric Co-morbidity at the Douglas Mental Health University Institute and served as Co-Director until retirement in 2013.

Dastoor notes she's often asked whether she finds it depressing to work with elderly patients who have dementia but says she's never felt that way. "Some of the patients have gone through such tremendous hardships in their lives before becoming ill, and in spite of it all, there is so much resilience of human spirit to be able to live, and to smile, that it's something to envy," she says. "I've always found the work exhilarating." Contributed by Beverley Colquhoun, Vice President, Zonta Club of Montreal.

YOUTH CORNER

Zoroastrian student group fosters sense of belonging

In the summer before Yazad Bhatena became a student at the University of Toronto, an anonymous message was sent to an online forum for the school's Mississauga campus asking if any Zoroastrians would like to get together and form a student group.

A year and a half later, the 19-year-old has found himself on the executive team of the Zoroastrian Students Association, a group which he says helps foster a sense of belonging in Zoroastrian youth while also teaching others about the community.

"Because our community is so small we don't usually get mentioned or there's not that many places to identify with other Zoroastrians. If I were a first year coming onto a campus where there was a club for even a small number of people, I would be thrilled," said Bhatena, who is now in his second year at university.

"Knowing that there's other people who share this particular part of my identity, it made my own transition to UTM a lot smoother." The group holds events over the course of the year aimed at bringing people together while injecting a Zoroastrian element – their first "meet and greet" incorporated a trivia challenge on Zoroastrian culture alongside free food, while an upcoming night of dinner and dancing will be timed around the celebration of Navroze, Bhatena said.

Other events have included movie nights, one of which screened a documentary on Parsi culture. The group also has an active social media presence, often posting articles on Zoroastrian culture and community members.

Whatever the activity, the association emphasizes inclusivity in all it does and counts Zoroastrians and non-Zoroastrians amongst those who partake in its events. "We just try to include everyone," said Bhatena. "We feel our culture has a lot to offer and anyone can be involved...Our club wouldn't be serving to its full potential if we just served a very limited number of people."

The other Faiths that were represented were Bahai, Christianity, Hinduism, Sikhism and Islam.
